Scrap Senate, Atienza urges

Manila mayor launches nat'l Cha-cha drive

LAUNCHING A NATION-WIDE movement for Charter change, Manila Mayor Jejomar Binay yesterday called the Senate "irrationalists" as he urged an immediate shift to a unicameral legislature and a parliamentary system.

ATIENTZA and other local executives urge Binay's Declaration for Charter change.

Binay, the chief of the Liberal Party and a strong Charter change advocate, said the bicameral system was a "built-in obstructive mechanism" for getting proposed laws enacted to the floor.

He told the Senate had a history of obstructionism in order amendments, from the time of President Elpidio Quirón, pitting itself against the President and making politics out of the legislative process.

"The people have to know now because it is obvious that the country is not going anywhere in the present system," he said in a statement.

The gathering which brought in a crowd of some 10,000 at the 70-year Aquino Stadium featured the campaign, called "Sign up for Sign, Sign up for Sign, Sign up for Sign" (SSSSS) — an umbrella organization of more than 50 labor union, business and workers' groups — said the present Senate of power would have improved the quality of life of ordinary Filipinos.

He said the proposed shift to a unicameral system would speed up the legislative process, making it more efficient and transparent, and help the country develop into a modern nation.

JDV 'obsessed with Cha-cha'

By Herman Sison
 SENATORS OF THE SENATE and even one of his own allies said yesterday that House Speaker Juan Pardo Ochoa was so obsessed with the parliamentary system and bicameralism that he believed such a change was needed even without the cooperation of the Senate.

Bird flu spreads west across Europe

VIENNA—LETHAL BIRD FLU SPREAD WESTWARD across Europe on Tuesday, with experts fearing a spring epidemic among poultry as wild migrating birds return from Africa.

In Africa itself, where H5N1 poultry outbreaks were also blamed in part for spreading the virus, there were more bird flu had caused deaths in Egypt.

The latest apparent outbreak of the H5N1 virus, which can be fatal in humans, were announced in Senegal and Germany.

It was indicated that it is very probably the very dangerous virus, "Croatian, Croatian Protection Minister from Senegal said public television MCG.

If the virus is confirmed by the European Union laboratory in England, Austria and Germany will join Italy and France on the list of EU countries with H5N1 outbreaks, all involving wild birds.

The H5N1 virus has also been detected in wild birds and poultry in Romania, Bulgaria, Ukraine and Croatia. The latest case has been reported to be in Europe.

Berlin, which first detected H5N1 last October, said on Tuesday the virus had reappeared in dead poultry in the southwestern village of Ingelheim.

Berlin on Tuesday reported its first cases of the H5N1 family of bird flu strains but was awaiting laboratory tests to see the exact strain of the pathogen.

Experts said it was only a matter of time before bird flu spread in Europe, the world's largest poultry producer after Brazil and the United States.

"We have absolutely no control over the introduction of the virus by migratory birds that are about to start migrating from Africa to Europe, Asia, Australia and China. It is unavoidable," French food safety agency president Jean-Henri ADP.

"Six months ago we alerted the international community to the risk of bird flu reaching Africa," said United Nations Food and Agriculture official Bernard Audebert.

"There are hints to say that there is a major threat in the spring."

The international group of 100 countries agreed that wild birds were unlikely to cause H5N1 outbreaks in Europe, Asia, Australia and China, but it is possible that the virus could spread to Europe via birds from China, Turkey, Europe and Latin America.

"Globalization has turned the children into the world's smallest and most vulnerable species," said H5N1's extreme attention. Law Business is a commitment. AFP

Cheney ducks for cover after shooting

WASHINGTON—US VICE PRESIDENT DICK Cheney kept a low profile Wednesday as he ducked a shooting partner and the White House's handling of the weekend incident overshadowed was a political controversy.

Cheney—who has yet to appear right publicly for shooting 75-year-old Texas lawyer Harry Whittington, in the neck, chest and arm—called him in his hospital room Tuesday to offer help and hear notes, the vice president's spokesman said.

Doctors blamed Whittington's chest stab wound on Whittington's heart for a mild heart attack he suffered Tuesday, and said that while his life was not in immediate danger, and an surgery was needed to remove the lodged bullet, he would have to stay in hospital another week.

Whittington has developed an irregular heartbeat, called atrial fibrillation, which can lead to the formation of blood clots that can cause strokes if they travel to the brain.

Cheney managed to duck a battalion of reporters chasing him a meeting he had with lawmakers Tuesday and White House aides said he had to plane to come forward with his account of the incident.

Most critics of the White House for waiting to announce the shooting accident last night 21 hours, two House Republicans' congressional press secretaries said Cheney should have reported the incident to the public without delay.

"It could have unfolded here been handled differently" by President George W. Bush's first experience from 2001 to 2005, said the magazine editor and publisher.

Martin Armstrong, who served as press secretary to both father and son-in-law President Ronald Reagan, said the same problem, but he was "appalled" at how the administration had handled the incident. AFP

Sharon's son jailed for illegal fund-raising

TEL AVIV—THE DAUGHTER SON OF DEPORTED Prime Minister Ariel Sharon was sentenced Tuesday to nine months in prison for illegal fund-raising during his father's 1999 primary campaign, but will be permitted to remain free until August because of the Israeli leader's grave medical condition.

Sharon calls for sentence following the at the Sharon devastating stroke last month, the judge called the case Sharon often a "symbol" of the state must be dealt with.

Oron Sharon, 41, son-in-law of the late prime minister and his father's attorney, the father's primary campaign in the 1999 primary election. The primary campaign claimed he received more than $1.3 million from groups in Israel and overseas for his father's campaign, amount that he exceeded legal fund-raising limits.

The primary victory helped propel Ariel Sharon to election as prime minister in early 2001 and reelection two years later. He was arrested in a 1998 investigation during that time. The case Sharon was not indicted.

Under a deal with prosecutors, Oron Sharon pleaded guilty to 11 months of falsifying corporate documents, policy and fundraising party funding laws. AFP

Al-Qaida leaders elusive 4 years after 9/11

WASHINGTON (U.S. ANSA) — "But, do you know where I am?"

With these words, Ayman al-Zawahiri, al-Qaida's No. 2 after Osama bin Laden, teased U.S. President George W. Bush last month after a US satellite in Pakistan failed to find him. US officials have since said they had no confidence in al-

Zawahiri's address, but more than four years after the Sept. 11 attacks and despite military operations and high-tech sensors, the al-Qaida No. 2 remains as elusive as ever.

US officials say only that they are thought to be somewhere in the rugged tribal areas that run for more than 800 km along the Pakistan-Afghanistan border.

"We think they're in the border region, but cannot discuss more than that for obvious reasons," a US counterterrorism official said, adding the two men were probably always on the move.

The Laker was last heard from on Jan. 17, an audio tape and Lander appeared in a video on Jan. 30. US officials say both men were probably always on the move.

It and did not make a video to highlight any apparent weakness.

"The fact that the Laker did an audio tape would suggest they are confident, at least in their own minds, still in the Pakistan tribal lands that made the long, painful battle for Bin Laden's capture."

Priest joins condemnation of anti-Islam Danish cartoon

COBALT, CEBU—A CATHOLIC priest in Cebu's Mindanao has joined Muslims in condemning the publication of the Danish cartoon.

Fr. Ben Layson, an international program coordinator of the archdiocese of Cebu, said the cartoonists had insulted Muslims and their faith should be rejected by sensible individuals.

"It is tantamount to insulting religion as it is happening now," said Layson, who is also parish priest of St. Peter's Basilica.

Layson said he could not imagine how Catholics would have reacted if the Pope were depicted in a cartoon, which is also prohibited in Islam.

SOMETHING ABOUT BUFFET restaurants always evokes feelings of fun, adventure and excitement, even if you don't have a big appetite.

It's probably no accident that a buffet serves up a medley of traditional representations of the cuisine of several countries, as well as an eclectic mix of contemporary flavors.

Edsa Shangri-La Mall Hotel, which opened in December in time for the holidays, is doing just that, with a buffet that includes a variety of traditional and contemporary dishes.

Food galore
What you expect to find buffet-style is a variety of food that goes beyond the usual buffet fare of pasta, meat, and vegetables. At Edsa Shangri-La, the buffet includes a variety of traditional and contemporary dishes, including a variety of traditional and contemporary dishes.
